

Continue the story...

I was on my way home from football training. The road wound its way through country fields, and I splashed in the big puddles that had formed during last night's thunderstorm. As I reached a bend, the earth began to shake. A crack began to grow in the tarmac and then as quick as a flash...

Continue the story...

I was on my way home from football training. The road wound its way through country fields, and I splashed in the big puddles that had formed during last night's thunderstorm. As I reached a bend, the earth began to shake. A crack began to grow in the tarmac and then as quick as a flash...

Continue the story...

I was on my way home from football training. The road wound its way through country fields, and I splashed in the big puddles that had formed during last night's thunderstorm. As I reached a bend, the earth began to shake. A crack began to grow in the tarmac and then as quick as a flash...

Continue the story...

I was on my way home from football training. The road wound its way through country fields, and I splashed in the big puddles that had formed during last night's thunderstorm. As I reached a bend, the earth began to shake. A crack began to grow in the tarmac and then as quick as a flash...